

FLOR-STOP™

Anti-flor floating discs for wine

CHARACTERISTICS

---

This is certainly the best known specialty in the wine market, invented and patented by Dal Cin in 1958. Flor-Stop consists of very pure paraffin discs containing small quantities of allyl isothiocyanate. These paraffin discs float on the wine, preserving its surface from microbial changes. Even today, it is still the most effective and simple means against flor formation and spoilage in wines.

Flor-Stop is authorized in Italy by DM No. 682 of 23-01-2020 (as per EU Reg 2019/934).

APPLICATIONS

The use of floats is particularly advantageous when storing wine in demijohns, barrels, vats and generally in all closed tanks. For this purpose, Flor-Stop is produced in three different sizes: small (1 g) for demijohns, medium (7 g) for barrels and large (20 g) for tanks.

Flor-stop does not release any abnormal odors or flavors, nor do any traces remain in the treated wines.

COMPOSITION

Floating discs made of pure paraffin containing allyl isothiocyanate in varying percentages depending on size and use.

DOSAGE and INSTRUCTION FOR USE

One floating tablet per container (demijohn, vat/barrel or tank), placed on the surface of the wine to be protected. As a rule, the floating tablets remain active for a period ranging from a few weeks to two to three months, depending on the free surface of the wine, the external temperature, the frequency of opening/closing the containers, and any contamination already in place. The tablet can be considered used up when the typical pungent odor is no longer perceptible to the nose.

Demijohns: 20 L containers minimum;

Barrels: 2 to 20 hL;

Tanks: 20 hL and above.

STORAGE

---

In unopened packaging, the product retains its effectiveness for 2 years. Store at a low temperature, possibly in the refrigerator (5° C) or even the freezer.

Any change in the color of the tablets (usually white or yellowish) does not affect their activity. It is important to reseal unused packages tightly.
